

Pamela Lefkowitz
Speech Language Pathologist

Pamela Lefkowitz, speech language pathologist, is licensed in New York and New Jersey. She holds a Certificate of Clinical Competence from the American Speech Language and Hearing Association. She has been practicing for more than 20 years in the pediatric field. She has worked in preschools, schools and in the Early Intervention Home Based services in both New York and New Jersey. Pamela has focused on developing communication skills for children with multiple physical and medical needs. Pamela is passionate about educating families and parents about early child language development. She views the child's development holistically and has focused on supporting families as well as the child.
